CERTIFICATE COURSE IN SECURITIES LAW

ABOUT THE COURSE

The financial pulse of the economy is the capital markets. The emergence of these markets have enabled companies to raise the capital from the public, by giving them share in the profits of the company. Because of this unique feature of owned capital with easy transferability of shares this mode of investment is very popular globally. Since huge investments are made by the general public, to safe guard their interest a stringent law has been enacted which is to be adhered to by the companies. Raising of funds from the general public is regulated by the Securities and Exchange Board of India (SEBI). SEBI from time to time frames guidelines and regulations to be complied with by the companies failing which huge amount of penalties are levied. To facilitate buying and selling of shares, Stock Exchanges are established and regulated by statues. The whole set of laws governing capital markets are called as securities law. Compliance with securities laws is the most crucial aspect in the case of companies who wish to trade securities in the stock market. Knowledge about their provision of related legislations, their compliances, due diligence, documentation, and contracts pertaining to the securities market is pivotal for every person interested in the securities market or corporate sector.

The certificate course in securities law endeavours to provide conceptual clarity about the securities market, hone analytical skills of related laws and develop problem solving skills by focusing on the application of laws in various scenarios. The programme is the blend of theoretical and applied knowledge. It's a three month week end course conducted jointly by PGCL (Pravin Gandhi College of law) and BSEIL (Bombay Stock Exchange Institute Limited).
